An Invitation from the Organising Committee of Restore, Regenerate, Revegetate: a Conference on Restoring Ecological Processes, Ecosystems and Landscapes in a Changing World

Dear Colleagues,

We extend a warm invitation to Australian and international organisations and companies to participate in Restore, Regenerate, Revegetate: Restoring Ecological Processes, Ecosystems and Landscapes in a Changing World. The beautiful city of Armidale, with its enviably mild summer climate on the New England Tablelands in northern New South Wales, Australia, will host this conference from 5–9 February 2017.

It has been ten years since the last national conference for the native vegetation management, revegetation and wildlife reintroduction industry in Australia. Given the rapid pace of global change, this conference assumes world-wide importance, and will attract international as well as national delegates.

The conference is being held at the University of New England, under the auspices of the Brigalow–Nandewar Biolinks Project, which is led by the Northern Tablelands and North-West Local Land Services with funding from the Australian Government's Biodiversity Fund. An exciting scientific program is being arranged by the Local Organising Committee in consultation with our national and international colleagues. The Scientific Program includes leading scientists from around the world, presenting keynote reviews covering both theoretical and practical advances in the knowledge and understanding of revegetation and vegetation management, as well as future prospects.

The program will offer the latest information for researchers and practitioners, bringing together both young and more experienced researchers, administrators and extension agents, as well as industry, business, farmers, miners, wildlife scientists and conservationists interested in restoration, revegetation and reintroduction. The conference will provide unparalleled opportunities for sponsors and exhibitors to promote their products and services to a relevant and influential audience. We hope you find the wide range of new ideas, theories and practices from around the world beneficial and an important part of the overall success of this event.

Various levels of sponsorship involvement are outlined in this document, but if there are other ways in which you would like to participate, we would welcome your ideas and your contribution. We look forward to hearing from you!

Professor Nick Reid
Chair, Local Organising Committee
6 May 2016
Conference Theme

Restore, Regenerate, Revegetate: Restoration of Ecological Processes, Ecosystems and Landscapes in a Changing World

The conference is about the science and practice of ecological restoration: the establishment or re-establishment of functional, self-sustaining ecosystems to meet societal goals and provide specified ecosystem services. Ecological restoration encompasses a wide variety of endeavours including restoring mined land for production or conservation, re-establishing vegetation and habitat on farmland to increase profitability, resilience or amenity, the restoration of endangered ecosystems, the reintroduction of locally extinct plants and animals, and the creation of novel ecosystems to meet future needs and challenges.

The conference will attract leading national and international speakers in the plenary sessions and the themed symposia listed below:

- Seed genetics and management
- Broad-acre revegetation strategies and techniques
- Riparian restoration and revegetation
- Cost-effective revegetation and restoration
- Fauna and ecosystem restoration
- Connectivity for biodiversity in fragmented landscapes
- Sustainable revegetation in a changing world: planning and design
- Revegetation for ecosystem service provision
- Sociology of restoration, revegetation and landscape repair
- Grazing management for biodiversity conservation
- Invasive species management
- Monitoring, evaluation, reporting and improvement of restoration and revegetation
- Public policy, native vegetation and wildlife management and restoration
Armidale, New South Wales, and Environs

City of Education, Culture, Technology and the Future

Armidale, a leader in education and agricultural research, is situated in the heart of the New England Tablelands in northern New South Wales, eastern Australia. A city of historical significance, Armidale boasts many fine architectural landmarks including magnificent cathedrals, churches and buildings, complemented by colourful pubs, restaurants, coffee shops, bookshops and quality gift and clothing shops, clustered around the central Mall.

Armidale is famous for its cosmopolitan atmosphere, an atmosphere that provides for a diverse and distinctive lifestyle and recreational opportunities.

Located 1000 m above sea level in northern New South Wales, and within comfortable driving distance of Sydney and Brisbane, Armidale summers are mild to warm. The annual rainfall of 800 mm is evenly spread between summer and winter, and the temperate tablelands environment is predominantly dedicated to livestock grazing of native and sown pastures, with extensive woodlands and forests, and World Heritage and wilderness national parks along the Great Eastern Escarpment within a half hour to an hour’s drive. The subtropical North Coast of New South Wales is two and a half hours’ drive to the east. The North-West Slopes and Plains are given over to irrigated and dryland cropping of valley floors and floodplains and grazing, within a variegated landscape of subhumid woodlands and forests and semiarid woodlands and grasslands, and are one to two and a half hours’ drive to the west.

Marketing and Public Relations

A detailed and comprehensive strategy has been put in place combining direct mail, internet marketing, public relations and promotional activities. The Conference will be continually promoted through the website, at related international and national meetings and in selected industry publications and trade journals, to ensure a successful and well marketed event in 2017.

A Conference Flyer will be available in May 2016 and to be distributed to over 5000 recipients both electronically and in hard copy.
